

Trip to Milano

I had the chance to spend a week in Milan through the Erasmus program, and it turned out to be a very memorable experience. Although the stay was short, it was packed with moments that really stayed with me.

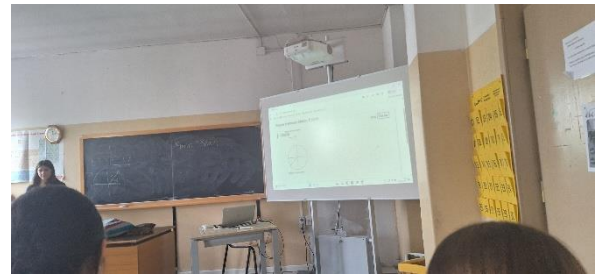

On the first day in Milan, it immediately felt like a city that never slows down. As the tour guide showed us around, I noticed the mix of traditional buildings and modern lifestyle everywhere. Seeing the Duomo up close was impressive.

On the second day, I met students from a different part of Europe, and we connected very quickly. We spent our day touring the school, we also got to see presentations on different science projects. In the afternoon we visited a museum.

On the third day, we got to work on a podcast where I learned a lot and also got to know the students more. We also got to see a physics presentation, which I found helpful as we are learning similar topics. After school we visited the Duomo, where we took a bunch of pictures and got to see the sunset from there.

On the fourth day, I made a presentation about the trip and went out to eat with the other students.

On the fifth day, we visited a museum, that had a lot of interactive games, and saw a lot of interesting structures.

Saying goodbye to Milan was difficult. I left feeling thankful for the opportunity, the friendships, and everything I learned from the experience. This Erasmus trip showed me that even a short time abroad can leave a lasting impression.
